

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

John Atkinson Interiors are a construction company specialising in the supply and installation of materials necessary to complete the interiors of new and refurbished buildings. The company recognises that in completing this work, we have a social and environmental impact and intends to operate in a socially responsible way

John Atkinson Interiors are committed to comply with all relevant environmental legislation and prevent pollution. We are also dedicated to continually improve their environmental performance by eliminating or reducing their environmental impact

This will be achieved by:-

Actively working to achieve BS 8555 – Environmental Management Systems and ISO 14001 – Environmental Certification

Providing resources and a management structure to identify and manage all environmental issues relevant to our work

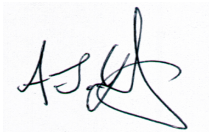

Managing our waste – producing activities in such a way as to minimise the wastage, recycle the material where possible and, where recycling is not possible, dispose of other materials responsibly [particularly gypsum based products, which are recycled whenever possible}

Monitoring the use of energy and comply with the energy saving plans of our partners, clients and colleagues

Minimising single occupancy for all transport wherever possible and ensure all company vehicles are kept in efficient working order

Purchasing timber from reputable timber importers and merchants who can demonstrate genuine sustainability and have established a long-term commitment to countries exporting the timber from managed stock

We will communicate the company policies to all our stakeholders and implement the agreed procedures and measures throughout all our work locations whenever possible
